A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a trial bottle at Hodkinson & Co.'s drug store.

Can't Sleep Nights, is the complaint of thousands suffering from Asthma, Consumption, Coughs, etc. Did you ever try Acker's English Remedy? It is the best preparation known for all Lung Troubles, sold on a positive guarantee at 10c., 50c.

W. PINNIGER, Druggist.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Hodgkinson & Co. 1y

Acker's Blood Elixir is the only Blood Remedy guaranteed. It is a positive cure for Ulcers, Eruptions, or Syphilitic Poisoning. It purifies the whole system, and banishes all Rheumatic and Neuralgic pains. We guarantee it.

W. PINNIGER, Druggist.

An Absolute Cure.

The ORIGINAL ABIETINE OINTMENT is only put up in large two-ounce tin boxes, and is an absolute cure for old sores, burns, wounds, chapped hands, and skin eruptions. Will positively cure all kinds of piles. Ask for the ORIGINAL ABIETINE OINTMENT. Sold by Osburn & Shoemaker at 25 cents per box—by mail 30 cents. 1y

The reason Why Acker's Blood Elixir is warranted, is because it is the best Blood Preparation known. It will positively cure all Blood Diseases, purifies the whole system, and thoroughly builds up the constitution. Remember, we guarantee it.

W. PINNIGER Druggist.

Merit Will Tell

Was never better demonstrated than when "Fryer's Abietene Remedies" were awarded diplomas at the late California State Fair at Sacramento, and at Mechanic's Institute at San Francisco. Wm. Pinniger is agent for these celebrated "Abietene Remedies," and he offers to return your money if they do not give satisfaction. In buying, be sure the facsimile signature of Dr. Fryer is on each, as none are genuine without it. 1y

If you Would enjoy your dinner and are prevented by Dyspepsia, use Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are a positive cure for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Flatulency and Constipation. We guarantee them. 25 and 50 cents.

W. PINNIGER, Druggist.

Sudden Death.

Dr. Flint's heart remedy will prolong life by preventing those sudden deaths from heart disease which bring untold grief to families, often plunging them into poverty, because of the untimely decease of the bread-winner. At druggists. $1.50. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address, J. J. Mack & Co., S. F.

Old And reliable Medicines are the best to depend upon. Acker's Blood Elixir has been prescribed for years for all Impurities of the Blood. In every form of Scrofulous, Syphilitic or Mercurial Diseases it is invaluable. For Rheumatism, has no equal.

W. PINNIGER, Druggist.

Unnecessary Misery.

Probably as much misery comes from habitual constipation as from any derangement of the functions of the body, and it is difficult to cure, for the reason that no one likes to take the medicines usually prescribed. Hamburg Figs were prepared to obviate this difficulty, and they will be found pleasant to the taste of women and children. Twenty five cents at all druggists. J. J. Mack & Co., proprietors, S. F.

Cure for Piles.

Itching Piles are known by moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable moisture and getting warm. This form, as well as Blind, Bleeding and protruding Piles, yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. 50 cents. Address The Bosanko Medical Co., Piqua, O. Sold by S. J. Hodgkinson & Co., Reno, Nev. 1y

Dr. Bo-San-Ko

In his new discovery for Consumption succeeds in producing a medicine which is acknowledged by all to be simply marvelous. It is exceedingly pleasant to the taste, perfectly harmless and does not sicken. In all cases of Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, and Pains in the chest, it has given universal satisfaction. Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup is sold at 50 cents by S. J. Hodgkinson & Co., Reno, Nev. f 15-6m.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not be there your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Roschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed us, you may depend upon eow

Cure for Sick Headache.

Go to S. J. Hodgkinson & Co., the druggists, and get a free sample of Dr. Gunn's Liver Pills. Will cure Sick Head ache, the first night. Good for Biliousness, Sallow Complexion or Pimples on the face. Only one for a dose. 25 cents a box. 1y

A MYSTERIOUS LETTER.

A Life Saved by an Alleged Missive From the Spirit World.

Rev. Mr. Cryder of the Church of England was of the party. He listened, but did not talk. When all the others had exerted all their ability in the production of goose pimples a facetious youth urged Mr. Cryder, who was a man of much dignity and solemn appearance. No one thought he would comply. But he did.

"Ten years ago," he said, "I was a poor curate in a small Berkshire village, where, through the influence of some friends I received an invitation to preach a trial sermon at one of our London churches. No time was to be lost, for I had to provide for a substitute, arrange my ideas, pack my things, and, everything being at last in proper shape, I hastened to the railroad station to take the lightning express for London. So absorbed was I in my thoughts, for a call to London is an event in a young curate's life, I might say the event, that I paid no attention to my surroundings, but suddenly I noticed a person walking before me on the platform, whom I had not seen before. He was a stout, square-built man, with red whiskers and a bald head, who seemed to suffer intensely from the heat, for he carried his hat in his hand and pulled out a large handkerchief, no doubt to wipe off the perspiration from his brow, for it was a sultry August day. In taking out his handkerchief he dropped a letter. I picked it up to give it to him, when suddenly I saw that the address was in my mother's handwriting. My sainted mother's, who had been dead for more than five years.

"I stopped in surprise. I rubbed my eyes, but there it was, my dear mother's well-known writing, and the letter was addressed:

"To the Reverend Benjamin Cryder,
"Stonebridge,
"County of Berkshire,
"England."

"That was I.

"There was no postmark on it, and I did not know whether to open it or ask the red-whiskered man for an explanation, when I heard the shrill whistle of a locomotive and saw the train roll into the station. I ran as fast as my legs would carry me—ran, as if it were, for dear life—but too late; for when I reached the station the train was gone, and so was the letter. I thought I must have dropped it. I hastened to the spot where I had found it, but in vain; and after an hour's needless search, could do nothing but telegraph to London and resign myself to my fate, for it was the last train Saturday night, and I felt as though I had lost my only chance in life.

"'Thy will be done,' I prayed that night, 'and if I am to remain a poor curate let me thank Thee for Thy great mercy to have kept me away from the wickedness of the great city and its manifold temptations.'

"When next day I went to church, bright with cheerfulness, my parishioners started as if they had seen a ghost, and the sexton rushed forward, grasping me by both hands.

"'You alone saved, Mr. Cryder?'

"'Saved from what?'

"'From the railroad wreck.'

"'I don't know of any railroad wreck. Has there been an accident?'

"'Why, the train on which you meant to go to London has been thrown down an embankment, and nearly every passenger killed!'"

The ghost-story tellers were speechless, and even the facetious youth did not dare to doubt the reverend narrator's truthfulness.

"Did you ever obtain a clew to that mysterious letter?" Mr. Cryder was asked.

"Never. I regard it as an interference of my departed mother by special permission of Providence."

"And how did it end?"

"I preached in London the next Sunday, and was installed as rector of St.—— Church a few weeks afterward."

In the days when nature and revelation were pitted against each other, David Hume, the sceptic, wrote an essay on the sufficiency of the light of nature. Dr. Robertson, the historian, replied to it by an essay on the insufficiency of the light of nature and the necessity of revelation. The two gentlemen were friends, though antagonists.

One evening at Robertson's house, where a literary party had assembled, nature and revelation was the topic of conversation.

Hume was present, and joined in the conversation, and urged his view with his usual subtilty; while Dr. Robertson set forth his faith in revelation with great clearness and power.

Hume rose to depart before the other guests, to whom he bowed as he retired through the door, followed by the host with a light to show him the way.

"Pray, don't trouble yourself," said Hume to his host, "I find the light of nature always sufficient."

He walked on, along the hall, stumbled over something, and pitched through the open front door down the steps and into the street.

Dr. Robertson ran after him with the light, and holding it over him and assisting him to rise, said, quietly, "You had better have a light from above, Mr. Hume."

Monte Carlo Victims.

The Monte Carlo people will do anything to avoid scandal. As a rule this is the process. You have lost all your money, and you are in bona-fide distress. You go to the Administration and ask for a little assistance to get home. You are asked at what table you played. The head croupier of that table is sent for. He recognizes you as a player and probably remembers whether you played heavily or not. Your story being confirmed, you say to what station you wish to proceed. A sum sufficient for your fare and your needs on the journey is then handed to you, and you have to sign an I O U for the amount.

So long as you don't return to Monte Carlo you hear no more of the matter, but if you get back there again you you must repay your I O U before you are allowed to re-enter the gambling saloons. All the people on the establishment are trained to remember faces and it is very rarely that they make a mistake.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EVERY NIGHT I SCRATCHED

Until the Skin was Raw, Body Covered with scales like spots of mortar. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary change your Cuticura Remedies performed on me. About the first of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, and then the next night the scales that formed meanwhile were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your Cuticura Remedies, and purchased them from my druggist and obtained almost immediate relief. I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, and have been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began using the Cuticura Remedies, and in four or five weeks was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I recommended the Cuticura Remedies to all in my vicinity, and I know of a great many who have taken them and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babes with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express in words the thanks to you for what the Cuticura Remedies have been to me. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as nice and clear as a baby's.

SLAVERY in China, according to Minister Denby, is a permanent, but by no means cruel, institution. The first-class slaves are the felons, who are slaves simply from the fact that their labor belongs to the public, the second class comprises the prisoners and captives taken in war, while the third class owes its origin to troubles that rose in a former dynasty, at which time the power who were without resources gave themselves and their families to the great and rich who were willing to protect and support them. These last forms of slavery are regarded rather as a misfortune than a shame. In practice the institution is of the mildest kind. Manumission is frequent and many instances are recorded in which slaves have refused their freedom. Indeed so mild and temperate is this practice, that according to the same authority, the missionaries wax eloquent in defense of slavery and regard the institution as "developing a mode of thought and sentiment worthy of the authors of Telemachus and of the Friend of Man." The Confucian idea of the family they say modifies and tempers slavery so that masters and slaves become members of one family. But the picture thus drawn is much too favorable. There are darker shadows which should be added to it. The condition of servitude is hereditary. Children of free parents, may be, and often are, sold into slavery. Girls up to the age of eighteen command higher prices than boys and are devoted to lives of immorality. And more horrible than all, children, and particularly orphans, in times of famine are sold, for what purpose may well be left to the imagination.

GOLD is now flowing quite largely out of New York to England. The same financial phenomenon was observable two years ago. The President on that occasion made it the subject of an appeal to Congress to demonetize silver. But no heed was paid to his suggestion, for the reason that the cause was the raising of the rate of discount by the Bank of England, and not a fiscal derangement that threatened serious consequences. The cause of the present drain is precisely the same. Two weeks ago the Bank of England raised its rate of discount. The effect for the time being is to make gold more valvable in London than it is in the United States, and as a consequence it is transferred to that great money center. When the bank finds its gold reserve replenished the rate will be lowered and no more gold will be sent abroad. Of course there are other causes which sometimes send gold out of the country. But in the usual trend of events the raising of the rate of discount by the Bank of England is sufficient to reverse the current. So far as reported President Cleveland is not suffering any financial anguish from what is now going on.

A PROBLEM of some importance has been submitted to the Methodist General Conference by Brother Siah Sek Ong, delegate from Foo Choo. This gentleman asks if polygamous Chinese converts can retain their wives and become good Methodists, or whether they must put all but number one aside. By the laws of the country they are legally married, and cannot legally put them aside. They have incurred obligations of fidelity, respect and esteem. They are obliged by law to support them, and even should they be willing and able to thrust them away, the rights and feelings of the women who have married in good faith and have given no offense, are entitled to some consideration. At last advices a decision had not been reached.

A Problem for Sunday.

There were three boys engaged in selling apples. Two of them had thirty apples each, and the third had sixty apples, or exactly as many as the other two put together. The first boy sold his apples at two for one cent, and, therefore, took in fifteen cents. The second sold his apples at three for one cent, and, therefore, took in ten cents. The two together took in twenty-five cents. But the third boy sold his sixty apples at five for two cents, and, therefore, only took in twenty-four cents. How can this be accounted for? To sell five apples for two cents ought to bring in as much as to sell two of them for one cent, and the other three for another cent; but it seems that it does not.

Sympathy for a Wronged Woman.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Lillie Richmond, who, disguised as a man, shot twice at Thomas Bollander, a prominent real estate dealer, told the story in the Police Court this morning of Bollander's despicable persecution, how he ruined her under a promise of marriage and then deserted and hounded her. The Justice intimated that she would have been justified in killing him, and discharged her.

CONTAGIOUS LEPROSY.

Medical Experiments on a Condemned Hawaiian Murderer.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The astounding statement is made by John M. Putnam, United States Consul-General to the Sandwich Islands, that a large number of persons afflicted with leprosy or giving evidence of leprosy's tendencies emigrate to the United States yearly. The aggregate is much larger than generally supposed. The report made by Putnam to the State Department from which these facts are obtained contains an account of an experiment which was made to determine whether or not leprosy is a contagious disease. The person experimented upon was a native who had been condemned to death, and the sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life on condition that he should consent to inoculation with leprous virous, to which he agreed. The experiment was conducted by Dr. Edward Ahning, a German specialist, employed by the Hawaiian Government for that purpose. On the 30th of September, 1884, Dr. Ahning removed a leprous tubercle from a leper in an advanced stage of the disease, made an incision in the skin of the exterior surface of the left forearm and stitched the leprous tubercle in the wound, where it ultimately grew and became adherent, forming a dense, hard, purple cicatrix, very sensitive to the touch. In short, it was thoroughly incorporated with the surrounding integument. Year after year, and the patient showed no evidence of the appearance of the disease. A few months ago the President of the Board of Health and the physician in charge noticed a change in the man. He was watched carefully, and in their opinion plain symptoms of leprosy approached, but only within the last month have they felt justified in pronouncing it leprosy. There are those who insist that the disease may have been in his system before vaccination, but the fact that he had arrived at middle age before the operation places the result to the credit of those who believe it is contagious.

General Sheridan Very Low.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—An intimate personal friend of General Sheridan, one of the few that have been admitted to see him during his illness, was met this morning just after leaving Sheridan's residence. The gentleman is also on close terms with the General's family. He said that the entire family were very much alarmed at the General's condition this morning. My informant called last night and chatted with the General a short time. He was so much better then that he spoke of riding out to-day if the weather admitted of it. During the night, however, the General became so much worse that the attending physician, Dr. O'Reilly, was sent for. This afternoon Dr. Yara has also been called in. The General is suffering from fatty degeneration of the heart, and there is strong probability that he may not outlive the day.

LATER—The report of a serious change for the worse in General Sheridan's condition is confirmed by the issue of a bulletin from army headquarters. General Sheridan's trouble is disease of the heart, and his intimate friends have known of the danger some time. When he was last attacked, however, Colonel Mike Sheridan and other members of his family endeavored to conceal the facts of the case from the public.

Mind-Cure Practices.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Mrs. Hester Foley, said to be the wife of a wealthy rancher near Stockton, California, is held in the Detention Hospital, suffering from hysteria. She has been an enthusiast for some time on the subject of metaphysics, and left California for Dallas, Texas, some time ago and studied with a lady there. Becoming dissatisfied, she came on to Chicago and went into the establishment of two West Side male metaphysicians, where there were several other students. She staid there long enough to assure herself, according to her story, that they taught principally immorality, and she left and went to her brother's house. She told Judge Pendergast yesterday a startling story of their practices and he issued attachments for them. The case promises sensational developments, as there are several women students at the house, whom Mrs. Foley says have been made the victims of these men.

The Two Great Conventions.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Herald publishes a complete list of the New York delegates to the St. Louis and Chicago National Conventions. It shows, so far as New York's Democratic delegation is concerned, that it is solid for Cleveland.

The Republican delegation is badly split up. The favorite, unquestionably is Blaine, but a good many delegates are not for Blaine under any circumstances. The second choice is Depew, and he is a strong choice, too. Those of the delegates who are recognized as friends of the late President Arthur would like to see Gresham nominated. Here and there in the delegation is a Sherman man.

Riot at a Negro College Commencement.

JACKSON, Miss., May 25.—A rumor exists here of a riot among the negroes at Tougaloo College, eight miles north of this place on the Illinois Central Railroad. Yesterday was Commencement day at the college and a large crowd of negroes had assembled. It is said the negroes were drinking a good deal, and when the 4 P. M. down train passed some shooting had taken place, but no one had been hurt. Later a telegram was received by the City Marshal urging him to bring up his whole police force, as a riot was in progress.

THE COLORADO RIVER.

Dan De Quille Discusses It—The Only River in Nevada Worthy the Name.

A better use of the Colorado river would be to open it up for navigation. It would afford an outlet for the mineral and agricultural regions of Southern Nevada (the lower part of Lincoln county) to the ocean. The obstacles to the navigation of the Colorado river from Port Isabel, on the Gulf of California, to Callville, Nevada, are not great. The distance from Callville to Port Isabel is 600 miles. The Colorado is the only stream in or touching this State worthy the name of river. Except the Owyhee, which runs north through Oregon and Idaho Territory to the Columbia river, we have no other stream that has an outlet to the ocean. The Colorado is several times larger than a river that would contain all the waters of the Carson, Truckee, Walker and Humboldt rivers and all other streams in the State. Where it sweeps along the southern borders of Nevada it has an average width of half a mile.

For years nothing has been done towards navigating the Colorado. In November, 1886, while the river was very low, G. W. Gilmore, with the steamer "Esmeralda" made a careful examination of it from the Gulf to Callville. He says of the river: "No expediment was found that could be at all serious in any stage of water until arriving at the famous Roaring Rapids, 558 miles from Port Isabel. These rapids are caused by bars, composed of rock, gravel and boulders, which make out obliquely from each side of the river toward the center. The current striking these bars is deflected, with a strong swell or roll, from each bank toward the middle of the channel. These swells cause the waters to break where they meet, and the water has then a straight rapid shoot down the contracted channel in the middle of the river. With the lead no bottom has been found in the rapids. The water appeared to be very deep, probably as much as thirty feet. The rapid way be altogether 500 yards in extent, but of this the great obstruction is found in only two or three hundred feet. There the straight shoot above described is located. In this two or three hundred feet the descent of the water is plainly perceptible to the eye. By the use of a water level it was found to fall in the neighborhood of four feet in the distance named."

To pass this shoot of 200 to 300 feet a ringbolt was placed in the rocks above, and a line 800 feet in length run up to it. Mr. Gilmore says: "This was the only ringbolt used on the trip. The line was taken to a steam capstan on a single purchase, and the steamboat was run up the 800 feet to the ringbolt in seven minutes easily, and without apparent strain. Few perhaps three-fourths of the 800 feet the steamboat slowly backed her wheel, to keep her head right."

This spot is but forty-two miles below Callville. All that would be necessary to be done here would be to expend a little dynamite in blowing out one of the bars by means of which the water is forced to the center of the river and there dammed up.

From roaring rapids to Black canyon is about twenty miles. In this part of the river is Explorer's Rock. Of this rock Mr. Gilmore says: "Explorer's Rock is situated in this portion of the river, is near mid-channel, and is seldom or never seen above water. Its position, however, is well known, and there is little danger from it, as there are about 100 feet of clear channel on each side of it, and the river runs with a still, low current."

Of Black canyon our explorer says: "Black canyon, from its entrance to its termination, is from eight to ten miles in length. In the canyon the river has an average depth of 200 feet. It is here a still, deep stream, flowing smoothly, but not rapidly between bold rocks, which for a large part of the way rise precipitous walls to an immense hight above the water. The channel is free from rocks from shore to shore, and has no sudden or short turns.

Leaving Black canyon, the country again becomes open with occasional bottom lands and grass on either side up to Vegas Wash, six or eight miles distant. The river resumes its average width of about half a mile. No bars or rapids were found between Black canyon and Vegas Wash. The channel was in width and depth about equal to that of the lower river. A small tribe of Indians live along the banks of the river.

From Vegas Wash to Callville (about twelve to fifteen miles), the Colorado has a smooth, slack current, and plenty of water. Nothing was seen of the river above Callville. Information showed that a steamboat might possibly be taken up with difficulty to a point 20 miles higher; but then, owing to crooks in the river, she would be but eight miles distant in a straight line by land from Callville. Mr. Smith, the Mormon agent, stated that three different men, at different times, and each ignorant of the other's proceeding, had been sent by Brigham Young from Salt Lake to examine the river and adjacent country, and that each had severally stated that Callville must be the head of navigation."

In conclusion, Mr. Gilmore says: "The average current of the Colorado, where no contraction or special obstruction exists, is about 3½ miles an hour. At high water it is, of course, more rapid. Against such a current, the "Esmeralda," when under way, towing a loaded barge, would make 40 miles a day from point to point, running only during daylight."

The cost of making the Colorado navigable for all sizes of river steamers to Callville would be small, and the government should be urged to make an appropriation for blasting out one of the bars of Roaring Rapids. A branch of the Salt Lake & Los Angeles railroad to Callville would then give an outlet to the Gulf of California and through that to Lower California, Mexico and all places bordering on the Pacific Ocean. The improvement of the Colorado river from Callville down to Port Isabel should enter as a prominent figure into the programme for the development of Southern Nevada, Southeastern California and Western Arizona. Six hundred miles of river navigation for the transportation of heavy and bulky freights are not to be despised. Just when it will be done remains to be seen, but sooner or later a railroad will be run down to Callville to connect with steamboats plying between that place and the Gulf of California. From Callville the distance to Salt Lake City is not great, and from that point goods might be very cheaply carried by rail. Utah already has a road reaching well down that way and need extend it only a short distance farther in order to obtain an outlet to the Pacific Ocean.

THE McDONALD DIVORCE.

Clara Belle Tells of Her Business Relations With Swalm.

But little of public interest was elicited from Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald Thursday afternoon during the trial of the divorce case. In reply to the question: "Did you ever give Swalm any money?" the witness replied: "I never gave him a cent."

"Did you not loan him money?"

"Never a cent."

Accounts were shown to her in which she was charged with having expended $2,600 while on her New York trip of six weeks, and she was asked to explain the necessity for such an outlay. This she proceeded to do by enumerating many of the items for which the money had gone. A considerable deficit remained, however, for which she could not account except as having been expended in little extras of one sort and another. Said the witness: "I made handsome presents to some of my friends there. They looked on me as a California banker's wife, and I felt bound to do the handsome thing."

"Was $2,600 not rather extravagant for such a trip?" quried Judge Hunt.

"I think not, under the circumstances," was the reply.

Witness said that most of the time that the other side claimed that Swalm was stopping at her house at No 816½ Haight street, her father was in town and staying at her house, and that while he was not there some other relative usually was.

In reference to the shipment of trunks and storage of goods in the name of "Stanford," witness said Swalm had nothing to do with the packages except to see that they were properly delivered and receipted for. She said she used the name of "Stanford" as a private mark, and was surprised to learn that Swalm had used the same arbitrary name when he purchased a ticket for himself to go east.

Further hearing of the case was continued until this afternoon, the morning session of the court being devoted to the calling of the law and motion calendar.

Desiring to get through with the McDonald divorce case as soon as possible, Judge Hunt held a session of the court last evening, and the cross-examination of Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald was proceeded with. The testimony given was but a repetition of that of the last two days, no new developments being made. The larger part of Mrs. McDonald's testimony was regarding her husband. At the close of her testimony the defense rested its case.

"Heiress to Millions,"

the newspaper stated, and how many women, probably read the same and envied her. But little was she to be envied, however; for in spite of her great wealth she was miserable. It was her lot, in common with myriads of women, to suffer from those "chronic weaknesses," which are peculiar to the female sex. Miserable, nervous and discouraged, she would gladly have given every dollar of her fortune for one brief installment of health. How easy, and how inexpensive would be the journey to health, if Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was selected as a remedy, and the use of the same persisted in; that is, the experience of thousands of women afflicted in the same manner, teaches us to predict so. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Reno for Rio Bonito.

Am willing to trade Rio Bonito lands in Butte county, California, for two or three town lots, or for a house and lot in Reno. It is believed that Rio Bonito property will increase in value 100 per cent within two years. There are no richer lands in the world than the Feather river bottom lands, good for oranges, lemons, peaches, apricots and other fruits without irrigation. This is an excellent opportunity for speculation, or to get a home in one of the best spots in California. Will be in Reno for a few days, and will be pleased to meet all those who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity.

PLEASANT HOURS.

The Calico Party a Complete Social and Financial Success.

The young ladies having charge of the arrangements of the calico ball given last evening at Armory Hall for the benefit of the Uniform Fund of the Reno brass band, are to be congratulated on the success which attended their efforts. The hall was crowded with devotees of Terpsichore and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. There was plenty of ice cream and cake for all, and the music was all that could be desired. The following ladies and gentlemen were present:

E. W. Black, Miss Irene Young, James Steele, Miss Daisy Budden, Harry Hale, Miss Ella Hollingsworth, Z. C. Mershon, Miss Belle Mershon, J. F. Aitken, Mrs. J. F. Notice.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening. Rev. C. L. Fisher, pastor. As tomorrow is the Sabbath before our Decoration Day, the pastor will preach at 11 A. M. upon the incidents of the late war, will make metion of many of the severe battles fought—by land and sea; will speak of the gallantry of many of our brave Generals and officers; also the surrender of General Robert E. Lee to General U. S. Grant. Sabbath school at 12:30 P. M. Subject for 7:30 P. M., Christis Victor. A general invitation is extended to Mitchell Post No. 69 of Reno. Also a cordial invitation to the Ladies' Relief Corps. Good music has been secured for the occasion. All come.

The Chollar Cable.

The cable for transmitting the electric power to be generated by dynamos on the Sutro tunnel level of the Chollar main incline for operating the new stamp mill near the shaft, has arrived in Virginia, says the Chronicle. The cable is about a half and the insulated copper wire nearly the fourth of an inch in diameter. There are 17 coils of the cable each containing 2,300 feet, representing a total length of above seven miles and weighing over five tons. The plant will be in place and ready for a test run about July 1.

Delegate Elam's Long Ride.

Some idea of the difficulty experienced by delegates coming from remote counties to attend the Democratic State Convention may be gained from the fact that Colonel R. H. Elam, delegate from Lincoln county, traveled 140 miles by stage from Pioche to Frisco, Utah, thence by the Utah Central railroad 243 miles to Ogden, thence by the Central Pacific 589 miles to Reno, and finally 52 miles by the V. & T. to Virginia City, a total distance of 1,024 miles, and 2,048 for the round trip.

To Pass Dividends.

A telegram to the San Francisco office from the Superintendent of the North Belle Isle mine at Tuscarora reads as follows: "Owing to the stoppages at the mill occasionally, the bad condition of the boiler and a shading off in the grade of ore, I would advise the suspension of dividends pending the expense to be incurred in the erection of the new concentrating plant and the setting up of a new boiler in the mill. Average ore milled the past week, $208."

The Bulwer Consolidated.

During the last fiscal year ended April 1, 1888, the Bulwer Consolidated Mining Company at Bodie produced bullion valued at $10,327.02. At the opening of the fiscal year the company had a cash balance of $724 20 on hand.

The disbursements at Bodie footed up $29,922 88, and at San Francisco $8,237.87, in New York $2,153.28, or total of $40,814.03. Thus the expenses at the mine were at the average rate of $2,493.75 per month.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the M. E. Church on Tuesday at 2:30 P. M. A full attendance is requested, as business of importance is to come before the meeting.

A GALA DAY.

The University Students Enjoy an Outing.

The picnic yesterday of the State University students, under the able management of Miss Clapp, proved to be a most gratifying success in every particular and resulted in complete satisfaction to all the participants. At 7:30 A. M. yesterday about one hundred persons, consisting of the University students, with their parents and friends, left the depot on the cars of the N. C. & O. R. R. for the end of the track, situated in Lassen county, California, about fifty-two miles distant from Reno. The day proved extremely favorable, and the ride was enjoyed by all, as the road leads through a fertile and picturesque section that unfolds new surprises at every turn, and which landed the picnickers in a beautiful grove of stately pines on the western verge of Long Valley, forty-five miles north of Reno, after a run to the end of the track and return to the point named. Here they left the cars, and after a short walk over a grassy slope, entered the grove, deeply carpeted with the needles of the pines, and building fires soon had the air filled with the aroma of Mocha, brewed by Prof. Miller and Regent Dormer in a manner that won the approval of all. Cloths were laid and seats taken on the mellow soil under the pines, and a rich repast spread from the loaded hampers, to which all did ample justice, even some old dyspeptics acknowledging that they never ate so heartily in their lives as then. After this, short excursions were made by the students in search of botanical specimens, and after a romp of a hour all boarded the train for the return home. The picnic grounds are by nature a delightful spot, and the railroad company contemplate improving them for a permanent resort. The picnic ended with the return home of all hands without accident or unpleasantness of any kind, reflecting much credit on the manager and all participants.

"And so in mountain solitudes—o'ertaken
As by some spell divine—
Their cares dropped from them like the needles shaken
From out the gusty pine."

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Suit, druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my twenty years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the liver, Kidneys or blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at Hodkinson and Co.'s drug store.

THE MOST LOVELY PORTION OF RENO.

FACING THE TRUCKEE—THE ARISTOCRATIC RIVERSIDE AVENUE DRIVEWAY—SPLENDID SEWERAGE—HEALTHFUL LOCATION AND SAFE FROM FIRE.

The proprietor is now ready to receive proposals for lots in Powning's Addition. The map gives a good idea of the Tract, which is situated between the Central Pacific Railroad and the Truckee River, and commences on the west at a point three blocks distant from Virginia street, making it the most central and convenient of any portion of the rapidly growing town of Reno. Unlike any other part of the town, this addition faces the beautiful Truckee River, and Riverside avenue is certain to become the fashionable driveway of the country. The streets are 80 feet wide, while Riverside and Keystone avenues are intended to be 100 feet in width. All alleys are 20 feet wide. The soil is a rich gravelly loam, and susceptible of the highest state of cultivation. Being situated as it is, it is more exempt from fire than any other section. The regular lots are 50x140 feet. The sewerage is perfect.

PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS

The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the Republican State Convention, which convened at Winnemucca on the 15th instant:

The Republicans of the State of Nevada, in Convention assembled, again express their loyalty to the principles of the Republican party, which have made this country so great and prosperous during the last quarter of a century.

II.

RESOLVED, That the question of a sufficient supply of circulating medium to maintain a permanent range of the price of labor and property is the most important political question awaiting solution by the American people.

That a diminishing quantity of money reduces the price of labor and property, enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

That the present financial system of the United States, which increases or diminishes the circulating medium at the pleasure of the manipulators of the national banks, without regard to the increase of population or the wants of the people, and which recognizes gold alone as the standard of value, and places in the hands of the Treasury Department all the revenue of the Government to speculate with in bonds and loan to the national banks without interest, is subsersive of the rights of the people, oppressive, unjust and should be repudiated.

That a financial policy whereby both gold and silver shall form the basis of circulation, whether the money used by the people be coin, or coin certificates redeemable in coin, or both, as convenience may require, is imperatively demanded.

That the attempt to substitute national bank notes, costing the Government millions of dollars annually, for free silver, costing nothing, is an outrage upon the people; that the money ring or trust, which has usurped the sovereign power of the Government to issue money, and which has fraudulently demonetized silver and stolen the revenues of the Government for private speculation, shocks the moral sense of the people and destroys respect for government and law. We demand that the ring or trust be destroyed, and equal rights be restored to all the people.

We charge that President Cleveland is the willing tool or agent of a powerful money ring, which fattens on the subsidies of the Government, makes war on silver, issues its paper currency at the expense of the Government, borrows the revenues raised by taxation and uses them without the payment of interest, contracts the currency to enhance the value of bonds, and enriches usurers, while it depresses the price of labor and property.

That we favor the nomination of no man for President who is personally interested in national banks or the bonded indebtedness of the United States, but we demand a candidate who is free to do justice to all the people of the country—the poor as well as the rich.

That the trick of the President and his advisers by which they prevented a vote in the House of Representatives on the Beck silver amendment to the Bond Purchase bill, equals the villainy of the secret and fraudulent demonetization of silver in 1873.

III.

RESOLVED, That we are in favor of the protection of home industry, and that the laborers of this country have a right to all the work required to supply the people of the United States, and that we are in favor of high wages, and to that end will protect the wage-workers from competition with the cheap labor of other lands.

IV.

RESOLVED, That the policy of the Government should be inaugurated and established by the people through their representatives in both Houses of Congress, and not by the President or money trust, of which he, either as agent or head, is most active in defending.

V.

We charge President Cleveland with violating every promise he made in favor of civil service reform, with crippling the mail service, with refusing to sign necessary bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors, with using the power of his administration to prevent appropriations for navy and coast defenses, with attempting to destroy the protective tariff, with courting the good will of other nations at the expense of the citizens of the United States, and with joining the foreign bondholders to demonetize silver and destroy the industries of his own country, and for the reduction of the wages of the Mint employes at Carson, for closing the Carson Mint when it was not only self-sustaining but a source of revenue to the Government, for his contemptuous vetoes of bills for the relief of disabled soldiers and sailors, and for failing to construct the Government building at Carson as required by law.

VI.

We favor the reduction of the Treasury surplus by the payment of pensions to Union soldiers, their widows and orphans, the improvement of rivers and harbors, the building of defenses for the sea coast, the erection of public buildings, the creation of a navy, the purchase of bonds and the repeal of the internal revenue laws taxing tobacco.

VII.

It is the duty of this State to maintain free, non-sectarian schools in the rural and sparsely settled districts, as well as in towns and thickly populated sections, and that such division of the school money shall be made as will furnish the means of education to all children of the State.

VIII.

We are in favor of reopening the Carson Mint for coinage and raising the wages of its employes to the standard paid by the last administration.

IX.

We demand the restoration of the mail service in this State to the efficiency maintained by the last Republican administration, and favor the payment of fair wages to all postal employes.

X.

We are in favor of the absolute exclusion of Chinese, and of the restriction of immigration by which the overcharged condition of the labor market is made worse, and we favor legislation by which a revision of our naturalization and land laws may be accomplished.

XI.

We demand in behalf of our various industries the retention of the duties on lead, borax, soda, hides and leather, and to restore the tariff of 1 67 on wool.

XII.

RESOLVED, That we recognize the right of labor to organize for its lawful protection.

XIII.

We favor the granting to Nevada of all Government land within the State for the purpose of providing means for irrigation and other improvements.

XIV.

We favor the appropriations by Congress for hydrographical and topographical surveys in this State, to the end that the waste waters may be preserved for the purpose of irrigation.

XV.

We endorse the wise and conservative administration of Governor Stevenson, and we heartily commend the able efforts of Senators Jones and Stewart and Representative Coolbaugh in behalf of the interests of this State.

LOVE.

"It would be nice to have a real lover," said Daisy Hewitt.

"Nonsense."

"Because," said Daisy, "I've known you all my life, and I should as soon think of making a lover out of yonder old clock on the stairs, that has stood ticking there for half a hundred years."

Charles Stapylton tried to laugh; but it was evident that he was a little nettled.

"I am not eligible to the position then?" questioned he.

"No," said Miss Daisy, in all good faith. "My idea of a lover is some one tall and dark and dangerously interesting — some one with a history — some one, for instance, 'with a little flush of color mantling his cheek,' like Colonel Croftenburgh."

"Humph!" commented Charles Stapylton, "I presume Colonel Croftenburgh has a history, if one could get at his creditors."

"Now, you are stooping to the unworthy passion of jealousy," said Daisy Hewitt, with dignity. "Charley, I thought better of you than that."

She went back into the house, her yellow curls shimmering an instant in the sunny doorway, her white dress fluttering about her like the vaporous masses of a summer cloud, and Stapylton went away with a slow, inelastic step.

"What a superb specimen of the genus donkey I am," he muttered between his set teeth, as he stalked along, twitching furiously at his mustache. "Can't I so much as speak to her without vexing her? Can't I exercise ordinary magnanimity toward a more fortunate rival? Although in my innermost heart I believe Colonel Croftenburgh to be a villain, I distrust his smooth accents, his ready speech, his conventional smile. And it is cruelly hard that, after loving Daisy Hewitt all my life, this stranger is to walk coolly in and bear away the prize beneath my very eyes."

But although he resolved for the future to put a bridle upon his impetuous lips, his resolution melted into empty air within the next twenty-four hours. He met Daisy in the woods gathering ferns.

"Oh, Charley, is that you?" she cried, gleefully; "the very one I wanted to see. Can you reach that exquisite little tuft of maiden-hair that grows high up on yonder ledge of rock?"

"Daisy, I think I could achieve any task you were to set me," he answered, fervently, as he swung himself up the steep acclivity and reached down the nodding plume of slender-stemmed ferns.

"I'm much obliged, I'm sure," said Daisy, arranging the leaves with a caressing touch. But Stapylton stood beside her.

"Daisy—did you really mean that yesterday?"

"Did I really mean what? she questioned, with blue, uplifted eyes of innocent surprise.

"That—that you never could look upon me in the light of a possible lover?"

"Charley, don't be a goose. Is this a masquerade or a practical joke?"

"Neither, Daisy. Only I love you."

"Then you are a fool for your pains," said Daisy, impatiently. "When you might have known that—"

"That what, Daisy?" His eyes were glittering, now, with suppressed light, his brow darkened.

"That I was engaged to Kenneth Croftenburgh."

"Daisy."

"Aye, and I am proud of it," she went on, with rose-red cheeks and downcast lashes. "We are to be married in the Fall, and go to Europe. I meant to have told you this before, but it only happened last evening, when we stood together under the old apple-tree in the moonlight.

So Charles Stapylton went away; trying to nerve himself to think that all was for the best. His Daisy-blossom was gathered by another man's hand—and he tried to rejoice in her happiness. But he could not. Human nature was too much for him, and he felt toward Croftenburgh as Cain of old might have felt toward Abel.

"I can't stay to see her married to him," he thought. "I had better go away before I commit myself by some exceptionally outrageous piece of folly."

So he went to New York. Went thither just in time to take part in a speculation which made him a wealthy man in a comparatively brief interval of time. The acquisition of gold has a wonderful influence on the nature of man; and, perhaps, it helped to deaden the dull pain in Charles Stapylton's heart sooner than anything else could have done.

It was a bleak November night, five years after, with gusts of occasional snow hurrying through the streets and the lamps flickering dimly in the wind, when a lady, dressed in black and closely veiled, stopped at the door of a superb brown-stone palace on the corner of two of the most prominent streets.

"Has Mr. Stapylton returned yet?"

"Just come," said the porter, indifferently. "In the Aramis not two hours ago. But he's very tired and very busy. Better call again. It ain't likely he'll see anybody to-night."

"He will see me," said the lady, in a low, firm voice, as she drew out a card and penciled two words upon it. Take this card to him without delay."

The porter started, but obeyed, and presently returned.

"You're to walk in, ma'm, please," and forthwith he ushered the mysterious stranger into a small reception-room, furnished in blue velvet and gold, with a thick Turkey carpet on the floor and mirrors gleaming all around. In the middle of the room, at an inlaid desk, sat a gentleman, in whose grave, carelined face and hair slightly "sprinkled with gray," it would scarcely be easy to recognize our old friend, Charley Stapylton.

"Daisy, is it you?" he asked, with earnest cordiality, as he advanced with outstretched hand.

"Yes, Charley, it is I."

Pale, beautiful, dressed in deep black, she stood before him, the violet eyes as blue and appealing as ever, the dewy red lips quivering.

"And I have come to beg for mercy at your hands," she added, nervously intertwining her own.

"Daisy!"

"Be silent, and hear me. They have told you of the forged check on the bank? the five thousand dollar check?"

"Yes."

"And that the forger is detected?"

"Certainly."

"But have they told you of the criminal's name?" she faltered.

"No, surely, Daisy," he muttered, with a strange light of comprehension dawning over his face.

"It is my husband! Oh, Charles Stapylton, you know my errand now! It is to beg, to plead that you will be merciful to us, as you one day expect mercy to be shown to yourself at the Eternal Throne. It is not that I longer care for him," she added, with a choking sob in her throat. "The spark of love died out long ago on the altar of my heart. I discovered my delusion when the orange-blossoms of my bridal-wreath were fairly withered! But I have some pride left—and to see my husband condemned to a felon's doom would kill me, I believe. You alone can save me, Charles, by putting a stop to these legal proceedings. Will you do it, for my sake?"

"I will do it for your sake, Daisy."

She bent her head over his hand—he could feel the tears dropping there.

"Oh, Charley, if I could only have known then all that I know now! Oh, Charley, Charley!"

That was all. They parted. But the next day, with a great thrill at his heart, Mr. Stapylton, the bank president, heard that the forger had committed suicide in his place of confinement during the very hour in which his wife was pleading for pardon in his behalf.

The pardon had come, but it was too late!

A year afterward Charles Stapylton was married to Daisy Croftenburgh—and her past became only as a troubled dream.

"You are quite sure you love me now, Daisy?" he pleaded on the eve of their bridal day.

"I have loved you longer than you have any idea of, Charley," she answered, tremulously. "I found out my fatal mistake before I had been married to—to that man a month. Oh, Charley, I believe I was acting under a spell."

"It is all over now, dearest," he answered—and so began the second life. The Old love was dead and sepulchred—the New was blossoming out.

THE WHITE WOLF.

A young and gallant warrior was Rudolph of Hammerstein. The only son of the old house of Hammerstein, a bright destiny seemed before him, but in an evil hour he saw and fancied the Lady Bertha, the sole daughter of the wily Carl of Carlsburg.

The lord of Carlsburg was one man picked out of ten thousand, as men went at that age in Germany. When war's alarms came upon the land, with no iron mail did the clerkly lord of Carlsburg incumber his limbs; no! he bought soldiers, and paid for their blood with his gold.

The very opposite in every respect was he to the gallant, courtly Rudolph, and it was with ill-favor that he beheld the soldier come a-wooing to his daughter.

The lord of Hammerstein was not rich enough to suit the fancy of the crafty Carl. No simple knight should have his daughter, so he declared; a baron, or at least a count of the empire, Lertha's husband must be.

He was her father, and so gallant Rudolph swallowed his rage, and haunted the tower only by stealth and in the gloom of the night. A good six months at least the lover had pined and sighed in vain, and then Peter the Hermit came through Germany, preaching the crusade against the infidels in the Holy Land.

Rudolph of Hammerstein was one of the first of the German knights to bind the "red cross" upon his breast and pledge his sword to the crusade.

High up on the mountain side was a little valley and in a cave in the cliff side a holy man dwelt. One morning a peasant, passing through the valley, discovered that the old hermit had paid the debt due to nature.

Rudolph had the remains carefully entombed and then he took up his abode in the lonely cell where the good man had dwelt. He cast aside the knightly dress of the soldier and donned the gray habit of the monkly student.

One single thing only dared to dispute the possession of the little valley with the soldier student, and that was a large white wolf. That the white wolf was but an evil spirit Rudolph felt confident.

To spear, arrow, or sword, the hide of the wolf was, doubtless, invulnerable, but Rudolph doubted if it could turn the edge of his woodman's ax duly dipped in hot water and consecrated by a prayer.

At twilight, then, on the next evening Rudolph took his station within the skirts of the forest and waited for the fearful shape to appear. It came at last stealing along with footfall so light that it did not even stir the dew-drops from the green flower cups.

With sure and steady aim Rudolph hurled his axe. Through the shoulder of the wolf the keen steel cut, and down upon the sward, with a moan, like naught else but a cry of human agony, the beast fell helpless. Rudolph bent over the wolf, and the animal looked up in his face as if imploring pity, and a human expression, too, shone in its great eyes.

To his cave in the cliff side the young man bore the wounded animal and carefully deposited it on a couch of skin.

When the morning broke, Rudolph turned to gaze at the white wolf, and there, on the skin couch, oh, a miracle! lay the Lady Bertha, a terrible wound in the shoulder.

Then to her lover the lady told a fearful story. Her father had become a master of the black art, and daily held communion with the hosts of hell. By night, as a wild beast, he ranged the woods. She had assisted him in his unholy rites.

Rudolph tended the lady diligently, and gradually won her to the good faith; and when she recovered together they would walk the woods.

But one night, carelessly loitering, twilight overtook them in the wood. Rudolph tried to hurry the girl homeward. They reached the edge of the forest; night came on apace; wild voices were in the wind; the eyes of the maiden began to blaze with a supernatural fire. Despite her lover's injunctions, she looked back, and then the evil spell fell upon her, and with a wild laugh she floated up in the air and disappeared.

Rudolph never smiled more, but died, a holy man, within Mecklenburg's gray walls.

THINGS that a husband would rather not have said might be interesting to reap by way of a change. Newly-married wife to her husband: "Beauty does not constitute happiness in marriage, does it, dear Henry?"

"Not at all, Agnes. I should be the last man to marry a pretty woman."

"I don't want no rubbish, no fine sentiments, if you please," said the widow who was asked what kind of an epitaph she desired for her late husband's tombstone. "Let it be short and simple, something like this: 'William Johnson, aged seventy-five years. The good die young.'"

Malarial poisons contains the germs of dangerous diseases. If its poisons accumulate in the system, Typhoid, Bilious, Internal fever or Chill Fever is sure to follow. Ayer's Ague Cure is a warranted specific for Malaria.
